A Visit to the Mammoth Cave. Correspondence of The Tribune. GLASGOW, Ky. Sept. 26, 1842.

When I was a school-boy and studied Morse's Geography, I remember seeing therein a long description of an immense cavern in the State of Kentucky; but little did I then imagine that I should ever be treading its dark avenues or dining beneath its magnificent domes. But so it is. How little do we know in our school-boy days what we may do, or where we may be in after years!

About a year ago I left my home among the Green Mountains to travel in the Far West. After making the voyage of the Great Lakes, wandering over a great portion of the State of Illinois and making trips on several of the great rivers. with many other peregrinations, I found myself at a small town in Kentucky only eighteen miles from the Mammoth Cave. Here I heard so much talk of it as a natural cariosity worthy to compare with Niagara, that I determined to visit it forthwith .-So, taking a horse I proceeded thither, arriving about noon at the hotel, which is kept near the Cave for the entertainment of visiters. Here I found several persons from various parts of the Union and two gentlemen from France. These, the attention, politeness, and good humor of the landlords (Messrs. Millers) caused to feel quite at home, and prepared for seeing every thing in its most pleasing aspect.

After partaking of a dinner served up in the style of our best hotels in New-York, a party was formed for an excursion into the Cave, the point of destination being "Goren's Dome," via the Gothic Avenue. Being equipped, that is to say, with old coats and pasts to match, (or mismatch as it might be,) and armed each with a lamp, we proceeded, under the command and guidance of " Mut," who served also as baggage-man, carrying oil and matches to serve in case of accident.

Now it is not to be supposed that I am going to give any thing like a description of this Cavern for I only saw about the fiftieth part of it, though I was nearly two whole days in it, and besides new branches are discovered very often even now, and moreover I think it would be impossible to give a description which would convey any idea of the scene, I shall only make a few random remarks and comparisons and leave the rest to the imagination of my readers.

The entrance or mouth is like what one of the streets of New-York would be with a massive arch of limestone spanning from the eaves of the buildings one side to the other. About one hundred yards from the mouth, where the passage narrows alittle, a partition has been built and a door surmounted with an Æolian Harp, which the constant rush of air outward keeps constantly playing. A short distance from the door the arch rises, and I found myself in an avenue as spacious as Nassau or Wall street and spanned by an arch of which the combined light of a dozen lamps gave only an indistinct view. Every other feeling was lost in astonishment. I had read and heard descriptions given in feet and inches, but they had failed to give me any conception of the size and magnificence of this truly Mammoth Cave

Continuing our walk about a mile, we came to the Church. This is a large space nearly circular, and on one side there is a gallery leading to a natural pulpit. We were informed that meetings were often held here; and a fitter place could no be found than in this Church built ' without hands.

Proceeding onwards two or three miles, and passing many places which in any other cave would be thought worth a visit from the remotest State in the Union, we came to what the guide called the Window to Goren's Dome. It appeared to be only a hole in the wall two or three feet square I thrust my lamp into it but what was my astonishment to find that my vision was bounded only by the darkness. As the wall which separated us from this cavern was only about two feet thick we took several lamps and stringing them on a stick extended them through the 'window:' by this means we were enabled dimly to discern in the guide said it was 136 feet to the bottom from where we stood, and I should think the top was at least 50 feet above us. At some distance from the window a passage has been discovered by which a man may with some difficulty descend to the bottom directly under the window. The proprietor of the Cave (Dr. Croghan) now ordered the guide to take some Bengal Lights and descend to the bottom and illuminate the Dome. When the lights were all burning the scene was too much for description; neither the pen nor the pencil could give any thing like a complete idea of the grandeur, sublimity and beauty of the scene. I was struck dumb with astonishment: I had come prepared to see the most wonderful cavern in the world; but my imagination was far inferior to the reality. I might tell you of the stalactites that hang from the roof in the most fanciful clusters and sparkle like water drops in the light of the lamps; of an immense rock that is suspended from the centre of the Dome; of the walls in many places perpendicular, and fluted as if by the hands of a cunning workman': I might write over this and a dozen more sheets of paper, and then should you view the scene as I viewed it you would say the half has not been told.

Leaving here, we turned our course towards the outer world, proceeding by a different route from the one we came. We emerged about 11 o'clock. My sheet is filled. Should you think this communication worthy admission into the columns of your paper, I will send you an account of my second day's ramble. The Mother of McCoy.

To the Editor of The Tribine : SIR: A lady, moved by the article in your paper re specting the case of the mother of McCoy, wishes to show her disposition to aid in furnishing the immediate supplies of which the death of her son is said to have deprived her. by the accompanying enclosure.

It is doubtful, however, in the mind of the writer, how far our sympathy for the distresses of the mother in this cri sis should be the guide to our action. If the case was that of a helpless widow, dependent on a child for maintenance and that child, by death in the ordinary course of nature. were taken from her, the claim for charity would address our hearts without alley. But here we have the instance of a mother who, whatever may be said of her character and condition in other respects, and whatever attempts she may have made to pre vent the fight which terminated so awfully-did not krine up her sons to possess the merit of good citizenship, or even, it should seem, of filtal obedience; and now, while she suffers most fearfully the consequences of their unregulated passions and depraved companionship, should we not look to the wrong done to the community as well as to her own calamitles; and (without intending harshuess) ought we to forget that, had this mother of McCoy trained her son to virtue, and taught him to shun the company of the base there would have been no opportunity for this "training, for the ring"-this studied pursuit of the paths of brutal vio lence and infamy, and this appalling and murderous self-sacrifice ! The mother of McCoy has now, it seems, to mourn the loss of the means of livelihood while mourning the fatal consequences of her son's career. All this is painful enough. the deprivation of support is no slight cause of famentation; but this will be as nothing to the reflection which, if she reflects at all, must embitter many remaining bours of her life-that had she trained him up aright, none of the evils she now endures would have come upon her.

These remarks are not made to aggravate her distress They are made to call attention to the duty of motherswho if they disregard the claims of virtue and morality, in the education of their offspring; and heed not the consideration that the "gray hairs" of others may be "brought down with sorrow to the grave," through the wickedness of their children—(would the case of the mother of Lillie less deserve our commisseration had he been the victim of McGoy—does it even new?)—should at least be led to behald the prospect that such "violent dealing" shall return upon themselves; and that they shall, reap of the traits their own hands have planted.

But let the mother of McCoy be cared for; let her wants be supplied. Let the authorities, if she be insane, place he in a suitable asyium. Above all, if as—if the writer mis in a suitable asylum. Above all, if as—if the writer mis-takes not—has been testified, she has another sen able-bo-died enough to lend his assistance in the bloody tragedy that has outraged a whole community, destroyed a broth-er's life, and made a mother a maniac, let the authorities place him in a proper prison, and let his labor maintain his hapless parent till the grave closes on her heart-broken ex-istense.

New-York Hailroads.

The receipts upon the New-York and Erie Railroad, between here and Goshen, during the 26 working days in September, were as follows.

Freight coming East.....$3,158 72 " for freight going West 3,249 52 " for passengers both ways.... 4,109 69 Total rec'ts from all sources for 26 days, $10,986 40 Deduct one-third as the supposed expense of working the Road, and all repairs and incidental expenses, which is the same as the Utica and Schenectady Railway...... 3,662 13 Supposed profits for one month..... $6,224 27

This for a road only 46 miles long! almost quals the Western Railway between Albany and Boston. Let us apply these returns to the New-York and Albany Railroad, which private enterprise and capital is now urging towards a rapid completion in Rensselaer, Columbia and Dutchess

The distance to Troy is 152 miles, through a rich agricultural and mineral region, equal to the choicest portions of Rockland and Orange.

At the same charge for passage between New-York, Albany and Troy as the Erie road charges to Goshen, ($1 50) the annual returns would, from the local trade, amount to $435,634 56 Through passengers, 600 daily, each way, at $1 50 per head, (supposing that of the 4000 persons who trave! daily between here and Albany this number will seek the facilities of a Railway,) 561,600 00 $997,234 56

Allowing one-twentieth of the merchandize transported upon the Erie and Champlain Canals, to pass over the road, the revenues would be ... 300,000 00

Add for trade between Boston and the New-England manufactories which will seek the New-York market over the Western Railway and come down on the Albany road 100,000 00

Total revenues$1,397,234 56 Suppose the expenses of working the road to be 45 per cent-a very high estimate...... 628,755 52

Leaving for nett profits $768,479 04 Or an amount equal to 29 per cent. upon 2,640,000, the estimated cost of the work! This nay appear visionary to those who have never turned their attention to the subject, but let any man sit down and calmly investigate the prospects of a Railway between here and Albany, forming the last link in the chain which is to bind New York and Buffalo, and he will readily arrive to the conclusion that no enterprize can equal it for a

A Railway running to Troy, uniting New-York City and Lake Erie, is now demanded by every man interested in the prosperity of the city, and Il will undoubtedly rejeice to learn that its prosects are so cheering. MANHATTAN.

A RASCAL IN CHECK .- The Ogdensburgh Times gives the following account of a Bigamy case just ried in that (St. Lawrence) County:

William D. Carr, alias Alfred Colburn, was arraigned on an indictment for Bigamy. It seems that he was married some 23 years since in Vermont, but soon came to this State and was married again in Massena in this County about 19 vears since to a respectable woman, but seon left er and roamed to parts unknown. About 13 r 14 years since he was married to Miss Rebecca Clark, of Utica, with whom he lived for some years, and removed to Deerfield, Oneida County. He continued to reside at Deerfield till about the 14th of December last, when he removed to West Turin, Lewis County, furnished his family with a few provisions and in a few days left a wife and ive or six children to turn and shift for themselves, to brave the rigors of the fierce wintry winds-to offer with hunger, or live on the charities of neigh bors-under the false pretence of visiting his father a Connecticut, but taking the opposite direction he soon found himself in Her Majesty's Province, and, forgetting his first, second, and third love, soon succeeded in wooing the affections and winoing the hand of another fair one; but he tarried carcely long enough to form an acquaintanceook leave of absence, and was next at work in Canton under the assumed name of Alfred Colourn. Some time in the Spring he removed to Madrid, and soon turned his attentions to the taughter of a widow woman, succeeded in his object, and was again married, under his assumed ognomen. It was soon suspected that all was not right, and he was arrested at the instance of a ew friends of humanity, and committed to our ail in Canton-plead guilty to an indictment found against him at the last term of the Court, and was sentenced to five years at Auburn State Prison-the longest term the law allows. It is believed his wives are all living.

STEAM FERRY-BOAT SOLD .- The steam ferry boat, owned by Sheriff, Fitzsimmons and others. of this city, was sold on the 5th inst. to a St. Louis company for $3,000, cash, in specie. [Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Dr. C. H. Fontaine, of Diana Mills, Buckngham County, Va., has published in the Richnond Inquirer a letter addressed to Dr. N. Chapnan, of Philadelphia, in which he details a cure of his son when affected with alarming symptoms of tetanus or lockjaw, by the application of Mesmerism. From the great analogy between tetanus and hydrophobia, Dr. Fontaine thinks it highly probable that Mesmerism will cure the last named

A FIRST SPREE .- " Never was drunk but once in my life," said a chap once in my hearing; "never mean to be again. The street seemed to be very steep, and I lifted my legs at every step as if I was getting up stairs. Several cart wheels were making convolutions in my brain; and at one time I fancied my head was a large carving and turning establishment, the lathes of which I was keeping in motion with my own feet. I could not conceive what was the reason that the town had turned into such an enormous hill; and what made it worse was, that it seemed all the time growing higher, and threatened to pitch over me. Stop, stop, thought I, and I'll head this old hill vet-or, at least, it shan't head me. So I turned round to go down and get at the bottom; but hang me if the town did n't turn round with me, head ing me all the time, and presenting the high bluff in front of me. Well, sure enough, the ground seen flew up and struck me in the forebead; and as soon as the stars cleared away, I commenced climbing with my hands and knees. The next thing I saw was a big brick house coming full split around the corner! and I believe it ran right over me, for I do n't remember any more!"

STOVES.

STOVES .- HOWE'S Patent Stove. O for heating Pariors, Halls, &c., and there probably is not a Stove for sale in this city that contains fin so small a compass) all the advantages this Stove does, for neatness of appearance, economy in fuel, and for emitting a soft and pleasant heat, it is not surpassed by any, and equalled by we few, if any; and while I am about it I should like to the attention of the public to those Stoves for sale in this market that are only got up to look at, and not for service and utility; there is considerable croaking about hollow bases or hearths, to warm or dry the feet upon. I would meraly ask the question, would a hearth or base made of sheet iron stand much putting feet upon it for that purpose? I think not, therefore I would caution the public to buy such Stoves only as have been well tested and tried. This Stove has a cast from hearth and two doors in front, one for putting in coal and the other to show the fire, thereby giving a very cheerful appearance, and at the same time brings an open here convenient. ing a very cheerful appearance, and at the same time brings an open fire convenient for warming st drying the lect. The American Institute has awarded me two premiums for the best and cheapest stoves in the market. Their great advantage over others is, that they have an ash pipe which carries off the light ashes, (so troublesome in other stoves and so injurious to furniture and merchandise.) These stoves are sold with the privilege of trying them two weeks, and returning them without charge, if they do not prove saidactory. Although they are the cheapest or any in the market now, the prices are just reduced from 10 to 15 per cent. These stoves are for sale at retail, and orders taken for

DR. RUSH'S LEGACY.—That celebrated physician, Dr. Benjamin Rush, sould not have left a more valuable legacy to mankind than his invaluable HEALTH PILL. It is indeed a blessing to the afflicted, giving relief in all the usual cases of soudden illness or lingering disease with which kumanity is distressed or the inctions of life are destroyed. It is now conceded by the most enument of the medical faculty, that the stomach is the seat or fountain of all disease; that it is, as it were, the cen-tre fr-m which proceed all the evils produced by foreign or irritating causes, and which thence spread to every part of he animal system.

The proper method of cure, therefore, is to attack the cit-ided in which the disease intrenches itself; and no com-mutation of medical agents has yet been discovered so effieachous for this purpose as the preparation of the late Dr Rash, and which, from the universal success attending their ue is, that they arrest disease in its first approach. The are preventives as well as remedies; and we will venture t sty that if taken by persons when they are first affected with symptoms of illness, many a case, that is either serious or tatal, might be avoided.

Let the afflicted without hesitation avail themselves of this invaluable legacy, and they will have reason to bless the name of Dr. Rush as one of the greatest benefactors of street, New-York; and (retail) by Kelly, 2:7 Broadway, New-York; J.
